

Denying the sexuality of older people is wrong, especially when they ask the support of public services!

#yeswehavesex

It is often assumed that older people are asexual or that sexuality is no longer important to them. But that's not true, like everyone else, older people have a sexual life. According to statistics, more than 50% of seniors over 65 are sexually active. Like everyone else, older persons should have the right to express their sexuality, but sexual expression does not receive the same levels of acceptance at all ages. When an older person comes to your office or service remember their sexual life is an important part of their being. Take into account their needs concerning sexuality and gender identity!

Denying the sexuality of older people is wrong!

For more information about Best4OlderLGBTI, please access the project website:

<https://www.best4older-lgbti.org/>